NAGR Leads the Fight Against Gun Control

Outspends Institutional Gun Lobby During Second Quarter

The National Association for Gun Rights (NAGR) announced today second quarter lobbying spending totals to stop the passage of gun control in Congress.

With more than $3 million spent in the second quarter, April – June, combined with the $1.8 million spent in the first quarter, NAGR has spent nearly $5 million to stop new federal gun control so far this year, which is more than the institutional gun lobby combined.

Using an aggressive mix of direct mail, email, social media, web ads, phone calls and TV and radio ads, NAGR focused second quarter lobbying efforts on mobilizing its more than 3 million members and supporters to pressure U.S. Senators against voting for new gun control.

“Obama, Bloomberg, Biden and others continue to call for gun control, but our members and supporters have pushed back like never before,” said Dudley Brown, Executive Vice President of the National Association for Gun Rights. “With the continued generous backing of our members and supporters, we’ll step on the gas during the August recess and make sure Senators hear from their constituents when they are at home in their respective states.”

With more than 3 million members and supporters, the National Association for Gun Rights is America’s fastest-growing and most effective grassroots gun rights organization.
