NAGR Urges Legislature to Override Nixon's Anti-Gun Veto

The National Association for Gun Rights (NAGR) is drumming up support from Second Amendment supporters in Missouri to override Governor Jay Nixon's veto of the Second Amendment Preservation Act, HB 436.

The Missouri Legislature will convene in early September to decide the fate of HB-436. If enacted, it would offer Missourians protections against the Federal government's efforts to impose new or existing unconstitutional infringements on their Second Amendment rights.

Using an aggressive mix of direct mail, email, social media, web ads and phone calls, NAGR will reach the hundreds of thousands of Missourians worried that Nixon's veto will stand, opening the door for the Obama administration to sidestep Congress and allow existing and future legislation to be imposed in Missouri without the consent of the State.

"NAGR will not stand on the sidelines and let Governor Nixon get a pass on his anti-freedom, anti-gun agenda," said Dudley Brown, Executive Vice President of the National Association for Gun Rights. "We are seeing states ramming radical, anti-Second Amendment agendas down the throats of the public all over the country, often at the request of national anti-gun interest groups. It is times like these where we step in and mobilize local residents to stand up for their Constitutional rights."

With more than 3 million members and supporters, the National Association for Gun Rights is America's fastest-growing and most effective grassroots gun rights organization.
